instantaneous retrieval of data from one city to another through computer systems which are tied down provided by wires of the Bell System.

When we get right down to it, to get the input to find out we have a truck, and what is going on, we still generate calls by patrolmen from their cars out in the field, and we still have calls giving them information back.

We hope that information can be gotten to him in a form other than voice. But to answer your question, there have been a number of factors that have compounded this. Then, in addition, our big cities have grown faster than the

THE CHAIRMAN: Does anybody dare another question?

(Laughter.)

THE CHAIRMAN: Thank you very much.

MR. BROOKING: It has been my pleasure.

THE CHAIRMAN: The City of Dallas.

ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF CITY OF DALLAS, TEXAS BY

FREDERICK W. FORD

MR. FORD: May it please the Commission:

I was tremendously impressed, and I am sure the Commission was, with the knowledge and understanding of communications that has been exhibited here just by this past speaker as well as others, and it seems a long time since yesterday, when you were being told that the mobile people didn't understand their business.

But when you reflect on what has happened, you undoubtedly are impressed with the inaccuracy of that. Ω

OPERATOR LICENSE EXPIRED?

It pays to keep tab on the expiration dates of licenses, especially those of Radio-telephone and Radiotelegraph 1st or 2nd classes. If you don't, you'll be put to a lot of unnecessary trouble. Renew at least 90 days prior to expiration on FCC Form 756. Don't forget the two dollar fee. Do not send cash. Ω
