

Sarah Chaffee Has Found Her Niche in Public Safety

By Karen L. Bune

The public safety sector is not historically unfamiliar to Sarah Chaffee who grew up surrounded by family members involved in the arena including her father who was a firefighter, her sister who, for a period of time, served as an emergency medical technician, and her grandfather who was a police officer. Chaffee entered the field at age 14 when she began as a fire department explorer.

Sarah Chaffee serves as a dispatcher for the Glastonbury Police Department in Glastonbury, Connecticut.